Lessons From Flowers: Lily

I am the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys. Like a lily among thorns, so is my love among the daughters. Song of Solomon 2:1-2

During the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in Europe, an unusual representation of the crucifixion of Christ arose in Christian art. The artwork, such as used in stained-glass windows, depicted Christ being crucified not on a cross but on a lily—or Christ holding a lily. This art has come to be known as the “lily crucifix,” appearing in paintings, statues, carvings, and church windows. Lilies have also been associated with the virgin Mary, representing her purity.

The lily is mentioned multiple times in the Bible. Several psalms (45; 60; 69; 80) were to be sung to a tune called “Lily of the Testimony (or Covenant)” —possibly a reference to the beauty of God’s covenant. And lilies appear eight times in the nature-rich love poem Song of Solomon, representing the beauty and purity of true love. Even today, lilies are the traditional Easter flower. No wonder Christ used “the lilies of the field” (Matthew 6:28) to illustrate the richness and beauty of God’s provision.

Take a moment to thank God for the beauty of the lily and the beauty and purity of His Son, Jesus Christ.

Beauty is God’s handwriting. Charles Kingsley
